Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The physical and psychological health of the women was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the women. The walking program significantly improved the women's physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, the 12-minute walk test, and the 400-meter walk test. The walking program also significantly improved the women's psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory, the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory, and the Symptom Checklist-36. The walking program had no significant effect on the women's weight, body mass index, or blood pressure. The walking program was a safe and effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or pulmonary disease. The subjects were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The control group consisted of 12 women who did not exercise. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and EE of the subjects. The HR and EE were significantly lower in the training group than in the control group at the end of the 10-week period. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular and metabolic health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
